How this place became so cool!

The first Red Hot & Blue restaurant opened in Arlington, Virginia in 1988, started by Lee Atwater, Don Sundquist and friends. Don Sundquist was from Memphis and served in the House of Representatives and as governor of Tennessee. The late Lee Atwater was an amateur blues musician and political figure that managed George H.W. Bush's successful race for the presidency.

These men were friends who longed for authentic Memphis-style barbecue and great blues music. Unable to find that combination anywhere in the Washington, DC area they decided the only way to get it done was to open a restaurant of their own.

Funny story...The original restaurant only had enough room for a tiny smoker in the kitchen, insufficient for the two-hour nightly waits for dinner. So, to meet the demand, Pitmaster Sonny McKnight towed a portable smoker, filled with ribs and billowing hickory smoke, around the Washington Beltway every night, just a step ahead of the health department. One of the first customers quipped it was, "the best bar-b-que I've ever had in a building that wasn't condemned."

Right: Sonny McKnight, The Original Pitmaster
